HOUSE OF COMMONS-Nov. 26.

THE NAVY. [We formerly gave a fketch of the following, which we now give more fully.]

The House resolved into a Committee of Supply, Mr Hobbat in the Chair.

Lord ARDEN moved, that 120,000 feamen be granted for the fervice of the enfuing year.

Sir JOHN SINCLAIR rofe to oppose the motion. the present state of the finances of the country, he hought this number much greater than ought to be proposed. It certainly was greater than the necessary number. One hundred and ten thousand men were thought sufficient at the end of the American war, and that number was furely more than fufficient now when the fleets of the enemy were fo greatly reduced.

Mr Pirr observed, that 110,000 was indeed the greatest number voted in the American war, not because they were fufficient, but because it was thought the greatest number the country could bear. But the unparalle-led increase of our commercial resources had proved that there was no reason for restricting this important brauch of the national force. But would the honourable baronet tell him that 110,000 were then fusicient. Let him look at the history of that war; instead of blocking up the fleets of the enemy in their ports, the British navy was everywhere inferior to the enemy, and was only rescued from destruction by that gallantry which never deferred it.

The House, he was convinced, would not, from m tives of economy, with to throw the country back into a fituation fuch as we flood in at the close of the American war, instead of maintaining our present exalted and enviable rank.

If the Hon. Baronet had turned his attention to our fuccesses, it might have furnished other arguments than those which be had used. It might have shewn him the necessity of pursuing those advantages and following them up with vigour, until we had compelled our enemies to offer those terms of peace which would not only be confiltent with our fecurity, as confidered fingly, but also as considered relatively to the other Powers of Europe. If we had found fuch a force originally neceffary for our own defence, and had fucceeded not only in repelling the attacks of our enemies, but had also converted those attempts into their confusion and our glory and advantage; if we had also not only succeedourselves; but had gained also those advantages the benefactors of the other nations of Europe, and fecuring them, and through them, ourselves more firmly from the defigns of the enemy? But let the Hon. Ba ronet look to all the paval departments, which fervice would be wish to be contracted? Was it the Mediterranean he would have abardoned, where we had fecured ourselves a complete dominion by a second blow, after the enemy had in some degree recovered from the first they received in those parts, by the capture of their naval force at Toulon? In other wars, and at former periods, that part had been too much neglected, but now we had uncontroulable dominion in these seas .-

Would the Honourable Baronet wish us to abandon our successes and advantages, and retain only the of which no imbecility of Councils could rob us? Would he hold out to the Porte, who too long with fome other nations had remained in floth and inactivity, that they had formed too halty an opinion of us, when they fupposed we should assist them in their efforts? Or the King of Naples, who felt that not only the crown, but his life and dominions, were preserved by the spirit and energy of the British Navy, while he was preparing to fecond the efforts of that British navy, should his hope be extinguished by the cold economy of British councils? Let the Honourable Baronet look to all quarters of the Globe-let him look near home, he would fee the enemy blockaded in their own ports-let him look at Cadiz, Brest, or the Texel; would he wish to continue the blockade, or release the remnant of their navy to continue their piratical depredations against our conmerce ?- Perhaps the Honourable Baronet would recommend the magnificent proposition to let them come out and fight, and then beat them. He did not doubt the event if they were, but it was not the most prudent line of conduct. Would the Honourable Baronet wish to reduce the number of cruizers, which continually cleared the feas, and under whose convoy the merchants brought home every month fleets which poured wealth and treasure into the bosom of the country ! If the Honourable Baronet would not withdraw the blockade of the enemies' ports, if he will not reduce the cruizers, if he would not abandon the Mediterranean, let him turn his view to our distant possessions.

After what he had feen of the attempts of our enemy if by any chance an expedition should escape the vigilance of our fleets, and arrive at our diftant possessions in the east, would be have them left naked and defenceless Let him look to the West Indies, where the enemy had abandoned the idea of resistance; but should a squadron steal forth, would the Hon. Baronet have Jamaica or the Leeward Islands undefended? Or was it not better to have a force there, than to fend one after the enemy from Europe? Was it in the British Channel, or on the coast of Ireland, that the Hon. Baronet would make the reduction? Would he give the enemy an opportunity of cherishing a rebellion which they had already excited? Or where was it that there must be a reduction of the fervice? Would not these several important points find employment for 120,000 feamen, in blockading the enemy, in fecuring our diffant poffeifions, protecting our trade, and in maintaining the dominion of the Channel He believed the Hon. Baronet had not looked at the question in that view, and he was so confident he would be the only diffentient voice, that he felt it perfectly unnecessary to add more.

Mr TIERNEY faid a few words in favour of the motion, which after a short explanation from Sir John Sin. clair was agreed to.

air was agreed to.

The following fums were then voted for the saval fervice :

For pay at 1l. 17s per month, 3,613,000 Ditto, at Il. 18s. Tear and wear, Navy ordnance at the rate of 51, per month per

The House being refumed, the report of the nittee was ordered to be received to-morrow.

NOVEMBER 27.

Mr Daniel Giles last week announced to his friends that he was ready to receive subscribers to a lift he was preparing for the enfuing loan.

The monied men have begun their preparations for the loan, which is expected to be 17 or 18,000,000l. Three lifts are forming, all by respectable parties, for the occasion.

There was a rumour yesterday, that Ministers receive ed private letters by the Hamburgh mail on Sunday, that the French had at length carried their point at Eh renbrietstein, and had made themselves masters of the place. We state this only upon rumour; we have no authority for the fact .- Star.

Lord Nelson entered into the 45th year of his age on Michaelman day laft.

On Sunday evening, in confequence of private information to Sir William Addington, Carpmeal, one of the officers belonging to Bow Street, went to the British Coffeehouse, Cockspur Street, and took into custody Lieutenant Cameron, of the 18th regiment, and Lieutenant Cameron, of the 79th regiment, in confequence of their being about to fight a duel, yesterday morning in Hyde Park. Yesterday morning they were brought before Sir William Addington, and, at his recommendation, the parties fettled their dispute by shak.

> HOUSE OF COMMONS-Nov. 2 SCOTS SMALL NOTES BILL.

THE NAVY. Mr HOBART brought up the Report of the Committee of Supply which fat yesterday.

The resolutions for 120,000 seamen, &c. was read a first and second time. Sir JOHN SINCLAIR faid, he continued of the fame opinion as yesterday with regard to the impropriety of the number of scamen voted. When he considered the ruined fituation of the revenue; when he confidered the reduced state of the enemy's force; when he confidered that we were now affilted by the Ruffian, Turkish, and perhaps Neapolitan navies, circumstances which were not noticed by the Honourable Gentleman the general advantage of Europe, 'opposite to him last night; when he considered the de-did it become us to renounce the chance of becoming | ranged flate of our finances, which called for the greatest attention; when he considered all these things, he could not help feeling, that the public interest loudly demanded the adoption of a fystem of the most rigid economy, and, upon this ground, he conceived it to be his duty to oppose the motion.

He must take notice of what the Right Honourable Gentleman alluded to last night respecting the distribu-tion of the naval force of the country. He had endeavoured to procure the best information he could on that fubject, but could obtain none better than that which was given in Steel's navy lift. From that publication it appeared, that there were 143 fail in commission, 85 of which were stated to be in active service, 28 fitting, and 30 employed as guard ships. He could not help thinking, that the last number was too great to be laid up from active service. His opinion had last night been thought fingular, but the House would recollect, that, when this subject was before the House a year ago, 110,000 men were then thought sufficient. An Honourable Gentleman, then absent, proposed, that the number should be 120,000 as in the former year, but his fuggestion was rejected, and the number originally proposed was voted by the House. In the American war the naval force of the enemy was 140 fail of the line;" it did not now amount to more than 70, and, if 110,000 men was enough at that period, the proportional number that ought now to be employed, would not be more than 25,000. Unless we begin with a plan of economy in time, we cannot expect to fucceed in relieving the country from the burdens under which it labours. A reduction of the national expenditure was necessary in every point of view; whether a peace was to be obtained, the war to be continued by this country with France, or a continental war to be re-newed. There were now employed in the fervice of the country, 120,000 feamen and 400,000 foldiers. Prudence required that this number should be gradually discharged; the peace establishment, when peace should arrive, could not be more than 30,000 feamen, and 50,000 foldiers. Thus, no less than 350,000 foldiers and 90,000 failors would at once be discharged. This was a very alarming confideration for the country, and it would certainly be prudent to discharge the land and fea forces gradually, and prevent that shock which society was to receive from fo great a number of perfons unaccultomed to industrious pursuits, being at once let loose upon the country.

Sir John then considered the question under the three different heads he had laid down, viz. a peace, the continuation of the war with France, or a new continental war; under all these suppositions he contended, that the most rigid economy was necessary. There was a maxim in political affairs, which ought never to be neglected, and which he wished to impress in a particular manner on the House at the present moment

FRENCH ARMY IN EGYPT.

The following is the latest advice received in Paris of the progress of the French army in Egypt .- The copies of these letters came with the papers received on Friday, and are considered as tolerably authentic:

EXTRACT OF AN AUTHENTIC LETTER FROM CAIRO, DATED THE 26TH FRUCTIDOR, 6TH YEAR (SEPT. 12, 1798), FROM AN AID-DE-CAMP OF THE FRENCH ARMY TO HIS FATHER.

" This letter will be delivered to you by Citizen Julien, Commissary at War, who returns to France for the recovery of his health; he has been so kind as to inform me of his intended departure, and to offer me his fervices for Paris. I avail myfelf of this opportunity to acquaint you with my fituation, and that of our victorious army. Every thing takes the most advan-tageous turn; we have completely got rid of the Ma-melucks; Ibrahim Bey is in the defarts of Syria, and Mourad Bey in upper Egypt, where he has been de-feated by General Defaix.—Preparations are making to celebrate, in the most solemn manner, the anniversary be celebrated in the very place where the General in Chief refides; he intends that day to give a dinner of 100 covers, to which all the Generals, all the Commanders of Corps, and a great number of Turks of distinction to be invited. The Festival is to begin eardistinction to be invited. ly in the morning. At eight in the evening, several horse and foot races will be given, and at night a firework. The Nile has actually reached its utmost height. and the greatest part of the country is inundated, and the utmost breadth of Egypt measures eight leagues; for where the inundation ends the defart begins. I am to fet out this moment to join General Defaix, about 60 leagues from hence, up the Nile. The Commander in Chief has charged me with a Commission for that General."

[N. B. This letter, which arrived at Paris on the 27th of Brumaire, (Nov. 17,) was accompanied with another as follows :]

" Lazaretto, at Leghorn, 13 Brnmaire," Nov. 3. 7th Year.

" CITIZEN JULIEN, COMMISSARY AT WAR WITH THE ARMIES OF THE EAST, COMING FROM ALEXANDRIA, TO CITIZEN * *

" The moment I reach the European shore, after a passage of 21 days from Alexandria to Leghorn, I make it my business to transmit to you a letter your son entrusted me with; but as I left Egypt a month after the date of this letter, I am to inform you, as a great number of couriers dispatched for Government have been taken by the English while I have had the good fortune to escape, I think it incumbent on me to fend you a brief detail of the most interesting facts which have come to my knowledge. You are perfectly acquainted with the circumstances of our arrival and operations in E-gypt, until the unfortunate action of Aboukir; others who were prefent at this event will give you a better ficians.

account of it than I can do. I shall therefore confine myfelf to inform you, that a great number of our feamen have furvived the lofs of our ships.—Of the difein-barked seamen, a nautical legion has been formed, which does duty on land. Our transports, two fail of the line, and seven or eight frigates, are lying safe in the port of Alexandria, which is blocked up by the English, who, however, do us no other harm, than that they render the communication between our armies and France more difficult. We have constantly proved victorious in all the battles we have fought, and we have loft but few men, though we should not do justice to the Mamelucks, if we did not fay, that their intrepid valour render them superior to all the chemies we have had to combat in But the affaffinations committed by the Be-Europe. douin Arabs have often renewed the horrors of the war of La Vendee, and we have to regret the loss of feveral of our countrymen who have been murdered fingly in the most cruel manner. At present we enjoy in peace the tranquil possession of Egypt, and on our departure. speedy expedition into Syria was intended, of the success of which there can be no doubt.

" On the 22d of September the tri-coloured ffandard was planted on the colum of Pompey, on the Pyramids, on the ramparts of the ancient famous city Thebes, and on the shores of the Red Sea. All the inhabitants wear the French cockade. The young Mamelucks, who remain in Egypt, of the age of 16 and 24, have been incorporated with our battalions. The commands in the different provinces are distributed among our Generals, who have appointed Divans, or Administrative Bodies, composed of the natives of the country. Religion has been inviolably respected, and our foldiers often join in the Egyptian festivals instituted in honour of Mahomet, or deftined to celebrate the rife of the waters of the Nile. The fame respect has been paid to national prejudices, and to the cultoms re. lative to women; for women and religion are swo things which inspire the inhabitants of this country with true fanaticism. The moment the representatives of each province are affembled at the General's in Chief, the new Government, it feems, will be foon organized.

"You are not ignorant of the existence of a National Institute, composed partly of the most distinguished men of letters fent on the expedition.

Our army, which has feverely suffered from the excessive heat and forced marches, begins now to enjoy the finelt feafon of the year, both autumn and win-ter being very mild in this climate, where the funmer-alone is truly infupportable. I shall make no general remarks on the prodigious fertility of the Delta, on the abundance of grain, rice, oranges, and olives, and on all the resources which may be drawn from Egypt, on roufing the inhabitants from that state of indolence and inactivity, in which they regetated under the yoke of the Mamelucks; and still less shall I entertain you on projects relative to the navigation of the Red Sea, which are affoat, and which our flay at Suez feems to an-

" The last interesting events, of which, I think, we bring the first news, are the full success of our endeayours to re-establish the canal which conducts the water from the Nile to Alexandria, and the diffiffal of all the transports belonging to the convoys of Toulos, Marfeilles, Corsica, Genoa, and Civita Vecchia. The Swedith, Danish, Greck, Imperial, Ottoman, Ragulan, Neapolitan, and Tufcan veffels have received leave to fail, but the French, Spanish and Ligurian thips ale detained until the movements of the enemy, or the fealon, afford them fome chance of returning tale hour. Upwards of 20 Neapolitan veffels, which formed a of the convoy of Civita Vecchia, fet fail at broad die light, trufting that the English would let them pass a-molested. But the enemy burnt every vessel, and ten the crews back on board two Greek veffels, which to now performing quarantine. I faw myfelf the burning of the Neapolitan ships, and the following evening made my escape in a small tartan of Leghorn, which i arrived fafe at her port of destination.

" I have only to add a few particulars respecting of paffage -Obliged to put into Terra-Nova, a fmall po in Sicily, to take in fresh water and provisions, ever article, even water, was refused us; on this ground that our Captain, coming from Alexandria, had French paffport and was suspected of having French in Flane men on board. Two days after we were more forth act as o nate in the port of Mazzona, where we obtained water in Franc and bread at the usual excessive prices, in consequence of our Captain having affured the inhabitants that h had no Frenchmen on board. The hatred and contempt which the Neapolitan agents in Sicily affect to out fucce entertain against our nation and Government exceed LOLLIS JULIEN."

AMERICA

By the Halifax packet, arrived at Falmouth, we have received New York papers to the 4th of Other ber, fourteen days latter than the date of the last #-

The ravages of the yellow fever this feafon exceed any former attack. In Philadelphia, notwithstanding between forty and fifty thousand of the inhabitants hate left the city, feventy or eighty deaths are reported, on an average, in 24 hours—in one instance, the report of the Health Committee stated 118 deaths within that fpace of time.

New York is also nearly deserted, and yet between forty and fifty die daily in that place. Several of the most respectable of the physicians have fallen a facrifica among whom we notice the names of Dr Gooperd Philadelphia; Drs Smith, Dingley, Jones, and Hies of New York. A number of the gazettes are flopped in confequence of the fickness among the workmen and in consequence of the fickness among the workmen, the deaths of their editors. Among the latter are Ber jamin Franklin Bache, editor of the Aurona, and T. Greenleaf, editor of the Argus, of New York, to leading papers in opposition to the Government; Mr J. Fenno, editor of the United States Gazette, and Mr-M'Lean, of the New York Gazette, two papers the contrary party. Commerce is at a stand, and to complexion of the large towns is gloomy indeed. The country in general is as healthy as usual.

"An evening walk," fays the Gazette, " in the foliam image of delolation that can possibly be conceived. On Saturday night e day endio last, in a dreadful gale of wind at N. W. about nine o'clock, a gun was heard, supposed to be from a ves ending Tuef fel in diffres, and foon after a brig was driven upon ending 1 a ridge that runs out from the main land to the Island of Ennisboffin, and almost instantly went to pieces, as I believe this place is one of the most dangerous for a ours—adult to complete, that when I got to the fhore the next by 14 phy morning, the stern of the vessel was lying a considerable when the wreck of the ship, and the whole altogether broke into different parts. From a piece of paper taken up along the shore, it can only be known what the vessel was. One paper mentions the Margaret tender, John Pollexsen, Lieut, and Com. Colin Ross, Master and Commander; it seems to be a return of the mea on board.

"The bodies of nine men and one woman have been driven on shore, and buried here; scarce any thing from the wreck has been faved; should any thing more

be found, I shall write again. I am, Sir,
Your most obedient servant, WYB. OLPHERT.

YELLOW FEVER.

By the arrival of a merchant ship from America off Portland, which failed from New York on the 17th of October, and from Boston on the 25th of the same month, 17 days later than the Packet from Halifax, which arrived on Monday, we have fome confolation in learning, that the fymptoms of the yellow fever had confiderably abated fince the date of the former advices. Unfortunately, however, from the inhabitants of New York flocking into that city too early, the fever had rather increased again. About 1500 persons have fallen a facrisce to it in New York.

A letter from Philadelphia of the 21st ult. states, that the number of deaths in that city was then reduced from 50 to about 20 a-day; and as the northerly winds had then fet in, great hopes were entertained that the malady would foon disappear altogether. The deaths in Philadelphia in the month of September imounted to 800.

Perhaps a more just idea of the effects of this horrid calamity cannot be formed than from reading the following extract of a letter, dated NEW YORK, Ocober 10. "I fear this peftilence may be dreaded as long as war continues in the West Indies. To give you some idea of what those suffer who are unable to fly from it, I need only quote a circumstance in my own family. poor domestic lies dead in my house of a common diforder, whom I expect to be obliged to help into her coffin, and to cover that coffin in the ground. persons be tempted at any price to perform these office for fear of the fever, fome deceits having been practifed. I know not if the man who makes the coffin will come within 100 yards of my house. Such is the dread of this awful disease."

The following are extracts of private advices from Paris, dated the 19th of December.

"The escape of M. Monneron, the director-general of the office of accounts current, has forced the administration of this institution to inform their fellow-citizens, that they can only pay each morning 300,000 livres in notes of 500 livres each. In the afternoon they will give to those who demand them, bills on com-

"This event, which strikes a fatal blow against com merce, has thrown all the banking-houses into the ut-most consternation. In order to prevent the upwar and diforder which evil-minded people might exerte on this occasion, the police has sent troops to the district of La Place des Victoires, as well as the Courts of Presdry, where nobody is at present admitted. It is, however, to be hoped, that this event will not be attended with the baneful confequences which every one concerned in the business feems to dread."

We have often thought it rather extraordinary that when taw fugars have not advanced above to the cwt. that refined fugars have rifen from 13d. to 18d. per lb. to the confumer; and therefore the exportation of them has been attended with enormous profit. It is, however, some confolation to the public, that in confequence of Mr Pitt's intention of putting the fugar trade under the Excife, refined fugars have fallen 20 per

EDINBURGH .- Nov. 30. 1798.

At a very numerous and respectable meeting of the merchants, bankers, traders, and other inhabitants of this city and neighbourhood, called by public advertisement the Newspapers.
The Right Honoutable Sir James Stratune, Bart.

Lord Provoft in the chair.

The Lord Provoft faid before the meeting a letter he received from the Lord Mayor of London, annexing a copy of the refolutions of merchants, bankers, traders, and other inhabitants of the city of London, held upon the 21st instant.

Which being read and considered, resolved unani mously to approve of and adopt the three first resolu ions, viz.

Imo, That the principle of finance resorted to in the last session of Parliament, namely, that of raising within the year a considerable portion of the sum necessary for the public service, has contributed, in an eminent degree, to the improvement of public credit and the advantage of the edumunity.

240. That this meeting are nevertheless of opinion, that the criterion then assumed, as the basis of that extraordinary supply, has been found unequal in its operation, inasmuch as it has failed to call forth a disc raitio of contribution from many descriptions of persons.

HOUSE OF COMMONS,

NOVEMBER 28.

The House resolved into a Committee of Supply.

Mr Hobart in the Chair.

Mr Pitt faid, he rose to move the continuance of the duties, to the year 1800, on several articles which were made temporary by an act of last Session, in confequence of the redemption of the land tax.

The following duties were then voted to continue for the ensuing year, viz.

The duties on malt, perry, and mum.

The duties on grant tobacco, and segment of the service of the segment of the these resources in the service of all our exertions—a safe and honourable peace.

On Monday, fet off from Somers's hotel, Lieut. Col. Nozze, for England-and yesterday, the Right Hon. the Earl of CRAWFURD, for Ayrihire.

Arrived, on Thursday last, at Walker's hotel, No. 4 her Grace the Duchels of Gordon, and Lady Gron-GINA GORDON from the north on their way for Londun.

At a very numerous meeting of the merchants bankers, manufacturers, and other inhabitants of Glaf-gow, held in the Town Hall on Wednesday, they unanimously resolved to give their utmost support to such measures as the Legislature may deem best calculated to call forth the resources of these kingdoms, in a manner more equal and effectual than by the criterion assumed as the basis of the extroardinary supply of last year.

Last week, a sire broke out in a stable belonging to Mr WM. Daysdale, at Belville, and totally confumed the racks, mangers, &c. Three horses that were in the stable were much burnt; one of them is not expected to live. The fire was occasioned by a boy, who dropt a candle amongst the straw used as bedding for the horfes. The premiles are not infured.

The text of the Royal Preacher at Windfor, on Sun day last, is faid to have been chains in gentle admonition to a certain four bottle Member of Administration-who, with all that facond fight, so penetrating in his so-ber deliberations, sometimes verifies the scriptoral confessional of "Now we see through a gloss darkly !"

There is a rumour of certain leading characters of the Oppolition having fignified a dilpolitipa to come to terms with Ministry, but have been given to understand their fervices were not wanted. Mr Fox retires with Seneca to St Ann's Hill.

SLATE WILL.

To be LET for such a number of years as can be agreed upon,
THE HILL of BRECKLET, immediately contiguous and adjacent to the well-known Slate Quarry of Balchellish, upon the side of Lochleven in Appin, Argyllshire.
The expences to be incurred in opening this hill for quarrying slates, must be very trifling, as to all appearance in every part, and indeed by trials made by experienced workmen, it will require almost no tirring except the surface sod.
The situation of this hill is peculiarly well adapted for the exportation of slates, as Lochleven is completely navigable for essels to any extent of burden employed in the slate trade.—
There can be no doubt of the excellent quality of the slates, as it must be a continuation of the same rock with Ballchellish. s it must be a continuation of the same rock with Ballchellish

Every possible accommodation will be given for the conveni-ency of the tacksman and workmen.

Proposals will be received by Duncan Campbell, writer, Inversey; or by James Hay, writer to the signet, Edinburgh; and John Muntyre, tenant in Brecklet, will shew the pre-
